Start your career at the premium provider of imaging systems

PROTEC®
medical systems

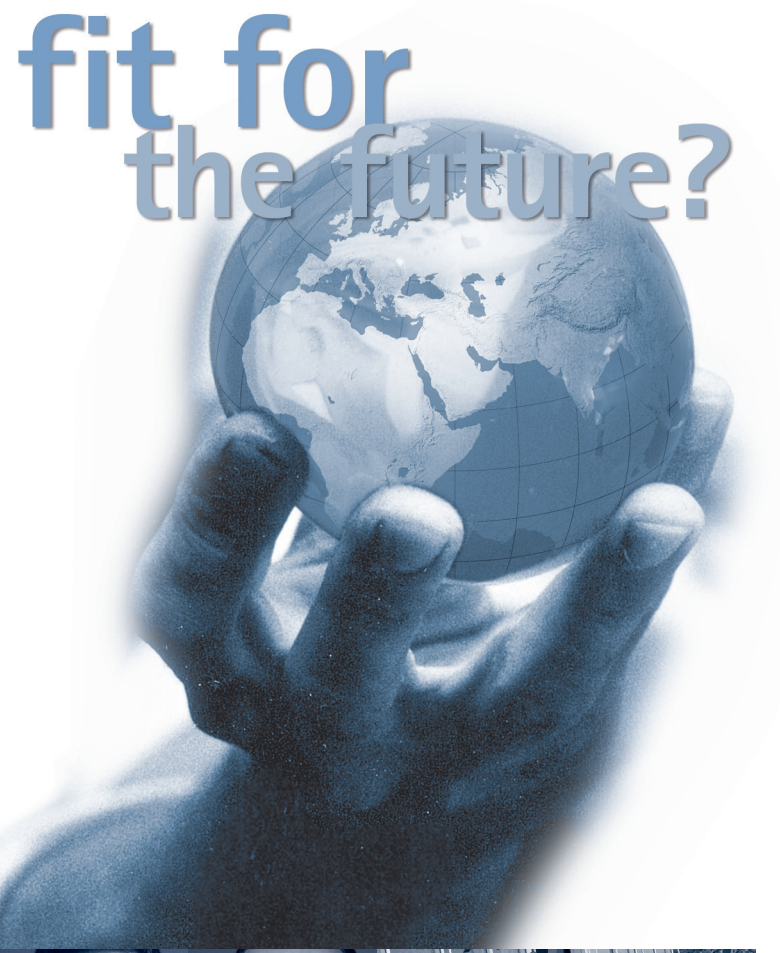
Are you an innovative and creative team player, searching for experience in the medical IT and engineering sector? Are you looking for interesting tasks and projects for your diploma thesis? If so, you should definitely take a closer look!

We are looking for

Undergraduate & Graduate students (female/male)

Who we are

PROTEC is an internationally-operating, medium-sized company that produces imaging systems for the medical sector. Our products and services in the area of radiology are sold from Germany through a qualified dealer network inover 100 countries. n Our product range includes different modalities (such as CR-systems and DR-systems), as well as specific software products (PACS) and x-ray systems. Therefore, we continually face new challenges, which, for motivated students, can provide interesting tasks and a solid basis for writing a diploma thesis. Plus, the prospects of continued employment with our company are high.



Who we are looking for

In order to fulfill the dynamic requirements of our market, we are looking for internationally competent and success-oriented undergraduate or graduate students in the sectors of

Software & Engineering and Design

How we work

In collaboration with various colleges and universities, we have already successfully accomplished several cooperative projects, which then became marketable products. We have been impressed by the commitment and innovativeness of the students we have hired in the past, and by their ability to come up with new ideas. We are proud that some of our former students have become successful staff members and are part of our team today.

What you can expect

Along with the offer of exciting new topics and issues, a flexible work schedule and adequate payment are also guaranteed.

Seize this chance!
